Items of Local Interest.

Two Papers This Week.

As our foreman, Shelby Tribble, wants next week "off," the editor, Master Lenny Miller, wants to "take" Christmas, and your humble servant, the editor, has to overhaul the presses, straighten out the books, and attend to some ten-thousand other little matters pertaining to next year's work, we will send out two issues this week and none next. The two papers are printed in order, to complete the volume, and give you full worth of your year's subscription. The next issue will be sent out Friday of this week, and then we will print no more until Jan. 2nd, next year. We dislike to miss an entire week, but as we do all the repair work ourselves, it is absolutely necessary to adopt the above plan. It is no nice job to take a printing press to pieces, but for several years, we have given our four presses a complete going over and renovating every Christmas week. Every cog and bolt is washed in benzine and if worn is replaced with a new one. This may seem foolish to some people, but the fact that every piece of machinery in THE RECORD office is just as good as the day we got it, goes to prove our contention, that for first-class work, material and equipment must be kept clean.

A Big Advantage.

The Stanford Journal has the fastest lady type-setter in the state, but THE RECORD still holds the lead among the male compositors, the faithful Capt. White sticking his three columns a day. One great advantage we have over Brer. Walton is that we can "cuss" before male hands, while he has to go to the woodshed to give vent to his feelings.

Getting Up a Show.

A number of local lads are at work on a minstrel show, which they propose to give during the holidays. It will be known as the "Billy West Minstrels." As most all the members of the old brass band are in the show, they will reorganize and play for street parade, etc. The boys say they will give a show hot enough to melt a step-mother's heart.

Will Raise Foxes.

Danville Advocate—Col. J. P. Chinn has bought a large tract of land in Kentucky river cliffs from William Conder. One of the stipulations of the purchase is that Conder, who is an old fox hunter, shall remain on the land and raise red foxes and hounds for which the Colonel is to compensate him liberally. As a starter for the breeding establishment, Colonel Chinn drove to Garrard county Saturday and offered Steve Walker $500 for a pair of dogs, but Walker turned the offer down, saying $3,000 would not touch them. The Colonel has one that he refused $250 for, and she will be put on the Conder farm. Colonel Chinn handled $3,500 worth of fox hounds last year, and says there is more money in canines than there is in short-horns.

Interesting Old Book.

The other day, a friend gave us an old book which is quite interesting to "native-born" Lancaster people, and especially so to the older citizens. It contains the constitution, by-laws, minutes, etc., of the "Lancaster Lyceum," organized Nov. 9, 1853. The charter members are as follows: Lewis Landrum, H. P. Thompson, William Hatch, J. T. McQuerry, Geo. E. Burdett, R. Allen Salter, Jas. A. Anderson, W. W. Wherritt, Sam F. McKee, W. E. Mallory, A. R. Denny, Edward Cooke, L. N. Settlers, Jas. Robinson, John Yantis, I. M. Bryant, N. Sandifer, Alex. Lusk, J. Burdett, W. J. Landrum, W. H. Thompson, O. F. Tillet. The minutes show that some deep questions were discussed and much interest taken in the society.

Only A Short Time.

Unless the City Council places a lamp near the depot, its only a matter of a very short time until the town will have to pay another big judgement for damages, like it did when the hotel cellar was left open. Its well enough to look into these matters and prevent trouble. The dangerous place at the depot is not on the company's side, but on the street next to town. There's a large excavation alongside the walk, which has no guard around it, and which is deep enough to break a leg, should a man step off the walk there. An arc light in front of the mill gate would not cost much, and it would be folly to put an incandescent there, as the latter is about as much benefit as a lightning bug.

One On Sweeney.

Last court day, the Hon. "Con" Bell, of Mercer, drove into Jesse Sweeney's livery stable and ordered a box stall for his horses. The stable was crowded, and, as usual on court days, no stall could be had. Jesse came in, clothed in his "working clothes," and told Mr. Bell he would remove a horse from a certain stall and let Mr. B's horse have it. Nothing more was thought of the matter, so that night when Mr. B. came to settle his bill, Jim Pearce, who was dressed in his Sunday clothes, receiving the pay. "Here," said Mr. Bell, pitching an extra quarter to Jim, "Give that to that boy of your's who got me the box stall." When Sweeney returned, Mr. Bell had gone, so Jess had to keep the quarter.

I have returned home, and am prepared to do all kinds of dress making, at reasonable prices. Will be glad to wait upon my friends. Miss Julia Reid.

Fred Frisbie, the druggist, has secured the room occupied by Ward & Simpson, and will move his goods about the first. The room is being fitted up and will be put in ship-shape.

Storm doors placed at entrance to the court house would not cost the county much, and would make the building much more comfortable. It would also save the officers much fuel.

Old Crisp is here in full force now. If you want to do a good turn, pay your subscription and enable the four men working on THE RECORD to buy new winter patches for their old trousers.

Knew Where to Strike.

The Presbyterian church at Nicholasville caught fire last week, but little damage was done. The flames seemed to know which church had the least water around.

Must Have Troubles.

Editor Harry McCarthy, of the Nicholasville Journal, must have forgotten to empty his pockets before going home. Listen to what he says: "Don't put too much sweet stuff on paper. If you do you will hear it in after years when your wife has some purpose in bullying upon you the severest punishment known to a married man."

Pay for Soldiers.

One of the Paymasters will be here Saturday the 20th, to pay the members of Co. L, of the Second Kentucky, who enlisted for the Spanish war. Those having friends who were in the Lancaster company should notify them to be on hand at that time. The nearest relatives of soldiers dead or missing, can draw this money by making affidavit before the proper officer of the fact. This distribution will be held in the county court room, at 10 o'clock.

Hotel Change at Paint Lick.

Mr. Ike Arnold has rented of John Siler, the Vermont Hotel at Paint Lick. He also gets the livery stable and will take charge of both the 1st. Mr. Arnold is one of Garrard's most industrious and popular men, and will run the business in the best possible manner. He has advertised a sale of his personal property for Tuesday, the 20th, at which time a lot of splendid farming utensils and other articles will be sold. See ad in this issue.

Well, We Guess Not.

Nicholasville News—Now is the time for the Lancaster people to get a move on themselves to secure an extension of the interurban road from Nicholasville to Lancaster. Lancaster is in the center of a net work of steam railroads, with but limited service from said roads and if she ever expects to assume a place among the surrounding counties, now is the time to act. Look at the North Middle town people. They have gone to work with a zeal that will insure them the interurban road. It is a settled fact that the proposed extension of the Louisville Southern will start from Harrodsburg and go to Danville consequently, Garrard should direct that the money subscribed to extend said roads from Burgin to Lancaster be diverted to the interurban road from Lexington to Lancaster.

Gen. Collier.

Mr. Sterling Gazette—Monday the President appointed Gen. Dan R. Collier, of Lancaster, Pension Agent for the District of Kentucky, to succeed Leslie Combs, appointed Minister to Guatemala. Gen. Collier had practically no opposition for the office, and was endorsed by nearly all of the leading Republicans of the State. The appointment of Gen Collier will result in better feeling among the Kentucky Republicans. It is a recognition of Gov. Bradley, who is known to be Collier's staunch friend and backer, and will satisfy the old soldiers who believe that this office should be filled by one of their old comrades, and who have never been satisfied with the selection of Mr Combs, solely on account of the fact that he was not a soldier. A further recognition of Gov. Bradley and his friends would go a long way toward placing the party in Kentucky where it was in 1895.

To my Newspaper Friends.

I take this method of extending my most sincere thanks to my good newspaper friends, Eddie Walton, of the Stanford Journal, Ceph Campbell, of the Somerset Journal and Capt. Lillard, of the Danville News, for their kindness in keeping my name on their list. Having been connected with newspapers for seventy years, and watched the progress of things in general, have come to the conclusion that if a man wants the truth he must go to the country papers to find it. In this day of rascality, every fellow for himself and the devil take the hindmost, you can believe but little you see in the great (?) dailies, so for good, wholesome reading, free from the dirty politics and money-devil schemes of the day, I advise the people to subscribe for and read the country papers. Thanking again, and with best wishes for your continued prosperity and happiness, I beg to remain your friend, Franklin J. White, Recorder office, Lancaster.

Dr. Beazley will move to rooms over Thompson's jewelry store on the first.

The chain gang scraped up a lot of mud from the Public Square last week but the streets are still quite dirty.

Grinding in the police court has been quite slow for a few weeks. Judge Shugars soaks 'em with a heavy fine, and evil doers are afraid of him.

The Louisville Times and Post now reach Lancaster at 8:26 p. m., only a few hours after they are printed. This is a big improvement over the old way of getting them the next morning after publication.

Two Candidates in Lincoln.

Hon. M. F. North who represented Lincoln county in the last Legislature, has announced for re-election. Jesse M. Alverson, of the Interior Journal, will also be a candidate for Representative.

A Bad Blunder.

Each week, THE RECORD gives place to whatever announcements the local W. C. T. U., may see proper to send in. Last issue, the festive compositor got in his work and made an inexcusable but very amusing error. The copy stated that a certain lady would read a paper on "Our Red Letter Days." The printer thought differently, however, and it ran in the paper "Our Red Letter Dogs." The entire RECORD force has since lived in fear and trembling, and every fellow is wearing a coat of mail.

Another One on Our Train.

Going up to Richmond the other afternoon, we were compelled to listen to a number of Smart Alecks get off funny (?) things about the local jerk-water train. One fellow did get off a good one on Capt. Price, however. When he handed over his ticket, he asked Phil how long it was good for. "Thirty days" replied the clever ticket puncher. "Well," said the fellow, "I am demmed glad to hear it's good thirty days, as the time-limit will probably not run out before we get to Richmond."

Honor For Noble Veterans.

Two of Garrard's most prominent citizens and gallant Confederate soldiers, Joe H. Arnold and Duncan Goodloe, have been honored by Gen. Bennett H. Young, Commander-in-Chief of the Ky. Dep't. Confederate Veterans. Mr. Arnold was asked to serve as assistant Inspector General, and Mr. Goodloe in the Quartermaster's Department, both to have the rank of Major. The gentlemen have accepted and Gen Young will never regret his selection, for two more gallant soldiers never shouldered a musket.

Miss Katharine Eggleston.

By far the most delightful number on the local lyceum course was the appearance of Miss Katharine Eggleston, in "When Knighthood Was in Flower." This monologue is a rarely well-arranged and consistent resume of the novel, and, even if a listener had never heard of the famous book, he would be thoroughly and entirely in possession of its story after listening to Miss Eggleston's version. This recital has all the variety of a programme of different selections, but adds also the unity and accumulative interest of a continuous story. Katharine Eggleston does on the lyceum platform what Julia Marlowe did on the stage—she impersonates the wilful, beautiful, womanly Mary Tudor so clearly that she seems a reincarnation of King Henry's sister herself. The story moves steadily along, growing with increasing interest up to Mary's plea for her lover's life into which Miss Eggleston puts such dramatic intensity, blended with the most perfect naturalness that the audience shares the anxiety of Mary and her relief when Henry decides to spare Brandon's life. Miss Eggleston seems to realize fully that the highest art is the nearest nature and her rendition exemplifies her belief. Mary's flashes of wit, whirlwinds of temper, irresistibly charming methods of coaxing her brother, the King, into whatever she wishes, her physical vigor and her thorough womanliness are all portrayed, and the whole recital is as vivid and picturesque as art and intellect combined can make it. The other characters are made in the monologue what they are in the book, setting and background for Mary herself. The recital, as a whole, is alive with the buoyancy of youth and health, the charm of a cultivated voice and physique, used in the interpretation of humor, of pathos and of tragedy and is distinguished by a finish and smoothness which betrays careful construction, earnest and sympathetic study and a real enjoyment of the work.

We understand the promoters of the course have only one more number, which will be duly announced through these columns. The people certainly should appreciate the efforts of those in charge of these entertainments, as few country towns get the benefit of hearing such high-class artists as have been brought here this season.

A Noble Deed.

During Rev. J. E. Woolford's meeting at Brodhead, a crippled girl took much interest therein, and each night attended the services. She was finally converted, and, working her way up the aisle in an old chair, united with the church and gave her heart to God. Being badly deformed, she could only get about with the assistance of friends. The firm of Albright and Adams wrote to Max Woche & Son, dealers in surgical instruments, 23 W. Sixth St., in Cincinnati, and asked if they would try and get a second-hand chair, state the price, and the Brodhead people would remit. Instead the firm sent her a new chair, asking Albright & Martin to present it to her, free of charge, with their compliments. Such acts of kindness are so few these days, that this noble deed is attracting much attention and many words of praise are being given the Cincinnati firm. Bro. Woolford says the girl is in a sad condition, being wholly unable to use her lower limbs. He will now endeavor to secure a means of further help for her, and try to arrange to give her an education to teach or fit her for some other occupation where she will earn a good living and do some work in the vineyard of the Master she has professed and will endeavor to follow.
